FINE ARTS CENTER

Inside:
PRESIDENT'S REPORT

From the Music Department Chair

I would like to express my pleasure at joining the Wartburg community and share with you some of the factors that influenced my decision.

Having attended a small, midwestern private college as an undergraduate, I was first drawn to Wartburg's concept of liberal arts education as training the whole person. The fact that the college is excited about its future—with good reason—also made a positive impression. It has been a homecoming of sorts as well, since both my wife and I graduated from the University of Iowa.

The presence of an outstanding and deeply committed music faculty and the prospect of a new fine arts facility made the opportunity to be a part of the music department especially attractive. I believe that the future of Wartburg's music department is bright, and I welcome the chance to help direct an outstanding, nationally recognized program. At a time when many college music departments are treading water or cutting back, Wartburg's is growing. The decision to build a new facility shows the administration's strong support of this trend.

Clearly, Wartburg and its music department are in an exciting position for the coming decade. With first-rate programs and faculty in all music areas and the advent of a much-needed new building, our department will be able to concentrate on an already successful recruiting program. We can maintain, even improve, current high standards in teaching and performance.

One area I would like to see expanded is regional recognition of the department for its individual performing faculty. This will involve increased faculty activity in off-campus performances and workshops/master classes. Several faculty have already indicated vigorous support of this concept.

My first months here have been busy but intensely rewarding. It is a pleasure to be part of the Wartburg College music department, which has benefitted from fine leadership for many years. I would like to personally thank Dr. Franklin E. Williams, on behalf of the entire department, for his outstanding service as chair during the years between 1975 and 1988. Dr. Williams' dedicated professionalism and willingness to help have made my initial days here much easier and will play a noticeable part in the music department's focus in the coming decade.

Dr. Ted Reuter is the new chair of the music department. Details of his appointment may be found in the report on new faculty in the Newsbriefs section.

ABOUT THE COVER: This drawing by Thorson Brom Broshar Snyder Architects of Waterloo, Iowa, shows the main entrance to Wartburg's planned Fine Arts Center. The new 42,000 square-foot facility will be located on the south end of campus between Liemohn and Luther Halls.

TRANSCRIPT POLICY Alumni who wish to obtain an official college transcript should contact the Registrar's Office, Wartburg College, 222 9th St. N.W., Waverly, Iowa 50677-1003. Fee is $3 per transcript. Requests should include maiden and all married names used by an alumnae/alumnus, as well as birth date and/or Social Security number. Enclose return address and payment with the request.

NONDISCRIMINATORY POLICY Wartburg College does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex, age or handicap in admission, employment, programs or activities. Persons having inquiries regarding compliance with Title VI, Title IX or Section 504 may contact Ronald Matthias, Wartburg College, 222 9th St. N.W., Waverly, Iowa 50677-1003, or the Assistant Secretary for Civil Rights, U.S. Department of Education.

Enrollment reaches all-time high of 1,456

Wartburg has set an all-time record in enrollment, according to figures from the registrar's office.

For the Fall Term, 1,456 students have matriculated, up 98 over last year. The previous high enrollment was 1,450 in 1968.

"This is a happy development for the college," Vice President for Advancement Doug Mason said. "We have our largest freshman class since 1971; minority and international enrollment is up substantially; and our retention remained good."

Of the total, 1,358 are full-time students, an increase of 87 over 1988. Included are 390 freshmen and 89 transfers, an increase of 45 new students. Part of the jump in total enrollment is due to improved international and minority recruitment. This year there are 44 new international students, compared to 25 last year. Minority student enrollment has increased from 19 to 29.

The academic profile of the student body is the second-highest in this decade.

The average ACT test score is 23.2, up from 22.8 last year, and 37 percent of the full-time freshmen graduated in the top 10 percent of their class.

NEW WING OPENS—The north wing of The Residence opened this fall, providing space for an additional 50 students. The three-story wing matches a similar wing that was completed in the summer of 1987. Both wings are joined by walkways to the former house for the college's president just north of the Student Memorial Union. The hall is divided into suites, each consisting of a living room and four bedrooms, providing space for eight students. To qualify for residence, students must develop an educational project for their suite.

Retention was 87.9 percent, down slightly from last year's record 88.5 percent but the second-highest in the decade.

The larger enrollment has meant some crowding in residence halls despite the fact that the college added 50 more beds in the last year.

Mason noted that the long-range plan of the college calls for an enrollment of 1,500.

"We anticipate further growth. This year's increase exceeded our early projections," he added.

Koob honors 'parenting'

Will Leisinger (kneeling) of the Wartburg maintenance staff installs a second stained glass window given by Kathryn Koob '62 for the bridge between the Whitehouse Business Center and the Student Memorial Union. Watching him is Bob Naujoks from the art department at Mt. Mercy College in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, creator of this and the first window given by Koob. This window is a memorial dedicated to parents, teachers and other people who were instrumental in her growth and development. It also is a tribute to all who "parent"—helping others move through life—and Koob's special instruction to the artist was to make the window inclusive in age, sex and color. A Latin inscription on the window reads, Deo, parentibus et magistris non potest satis gratiae rependi. Translated, it means "God, parents and teachers can never be fully thanked or repaid." Naujoks found the text in Luther's Large Catechism. The first window, given to the college in 1987, is a memorial to the hostages who were held in the American embassy in Iran for 444 days. Koob was one of those hostages. She currently is with the U.S. Information Agency in Munich, Germany.

Record financial support brings national award

Three years of record philanthropic support earned Wartburg a national award from the Council of Advancement and Support of Education (CASE).

The college received a Silver Medal Award for Total Financial Support Improvement in the 1988 CASE National Recognition Program. The award recognized Wartburg for doubling total giving to the college between 1986 and 1989.

Wartburg topped the 19 colleges entering this category, according to Jan A. Johnson, vice president for university advancement at Eastern Washington University, Cheney, Wash., and coordinator of judging. Johnson said no Gold Medal was awarded, and four colleges received Bronze Medals.

A dramatic increase in Wartburg's endowment accounted for the record years in philanthropic support, according to Doug Mason, vice president for advancement.

Between May 31, 1986 and May 31, 1989, Wartburg's endowment increased from $3.2 million to a current total of just under $9 million.

"Over the past six years, the endowment first doubled, then almost tripled," Mason said, noting that the endowment in May 1981 was just $1.5 million.

President Robert Vogel said growth in endowment is one of the goals of the college's 10-year plan, A Decade of Opportunity. He noted that financial consultants consider an adequate endowment to be $20,000 per student, meaning that with its goal of 1,500 students, Wartburg is working toward an endowment of $30 million.

Vogel said the college expects to receive more than $4 million in additional endowment funds through pledges now in place for endowed chairs, distinguished professorships, and endowed scholarships. Of that amount, more than $1 million will come from the personal pledges of Board of Regents members.

"The endowment provides a steady source of income for the college, regardless of enrollment or the economy," explained Dr. Ronald Matthias, vice president for administration and finance. Matthias said that while gifts provide the main source of endowment income, the fund also generates some of its own growth, since the college is committed to spending less than the endowment earns overall.

While endowment gifts played a major role in Wartburg's total financial improvement, Terry Hudson, assistant vice president for development, pointed out that the Annual Fund has also shown substantial growth.

"In 1985-86, Wartburg received gifts from 2,869 alumni, 282 parents and 325 friends," Hudson said. "By 1988-89, those numbers had grown to 4,013 alumni, 644 parents and 506 friends, many of whom contributed to the Annual Fund."

NSF grant assists computer program

Wartburg computer science students can now gain experience in parallel processing because of a $15,700 matching grant from the National Science Foundation through its Instrumentation and Laboratory Improvement Program.

The grant will assist in the establishment of four parallel processing systems, in which multiple computers can work simultaneously on a problem. This includes four AT class microcomputers, each equipped with a transputer, the parallel processing chip. Sixteen additional transputers can be connected in various configurations with the four host computers.

The project is under the direction of Josef Breutzmann and John Zelle, both of the mathematics and computer science faculty.

Breutzmann said the new equipment will first be used during the next May Term in a computer science seminar, Parallel Computing.

"We had offered the course before," he said, "but we did not have the actual equipment. We could only simulate parallelism. Parallel processing has grown in importance in the computer field, and we felt it important that Wartburg students have experience in it."

Breutzmann said the department intends to work the new equipment into other computer science courses as well.

College joins Waldorf in Adult Degree Program

Wartburg is cooperating with Waldorf College of Forest City, Iowa, in its Adult Degree Program there.

The joint program, offered for the first time this fall, allows students to complete a bachelor of arts degree in either business administration or computer information systems. Additional majors may be added if there is enough interest shown by students.

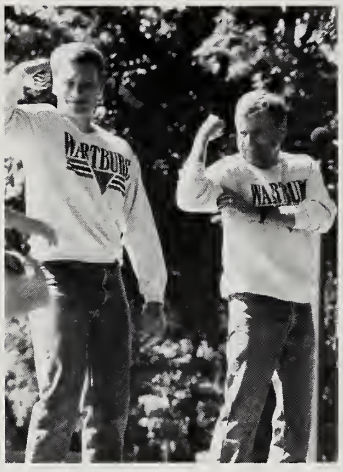
Students in the program, which is designed with the working adult in mind, will complete the first two years of the degree program with Waldorf and the final two years with Wartburg. Students with previous college work may also transfer appropriate courses into the program.

Wartburg this year is offering a business course, "Principles of Management."

Family Weekend cited in national contest

Wartburg's Family Weekend program received the Bronze Medal Award in a national competition sponsored by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education (CASE). It was the second national CASE award received this year by the college, which also earned the silver medal for improvement in total financial support (see story on page 5).

The jury said the Weekend program's strength was the planning that went into it, and they were particularly impressed by student involvement in the planning. They also cited the variety of activities that are designed to entice different types of students and their families to participate.



FAMILY WEEKEND — Left, a father strolls with his daughters during the Sept. 15-17 weekend festivities. Right, father and son compete in the Parent-Child Look-Alike Contest.

It was developed to involve the families of all Wartburg students, non-traditional and international students as well as traditional students, in the Wartburg community and expose them to the students' "home away from home." The weekend includes activities for parents, grandparents and siblings, the children and spouses of non-traditional students and host families of international students.

Christmas With Wartburg moves to Des Moines Civic Center

To better accommodate a growing audience, Christmas With Wartburg moves to the Des Moines Civic Center for this year's Des Moines, Iowa, performance. The program will be presented Saturday, Dec. 2, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Campus performances are scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 30, at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday, Dec. 3, at 3 p.m. Nazareth Lutheran Church, Cedar Falls, Iowa, will be the site of a fourth performance on Friday, Dec. 1, at 8 p.m.

The theme this year for the traditional holiday event is "Let Creation Praise Its Lord." It emphasizes creation as a gift from God to be nurtured and cared for, according to Dr. Herman Diers of the religion department, who helped develop the concept.

There is no admission charge, but those attending are asked to pick up envelope tickets.

Receptions will follow each of the evening performances.

A Candlelight Dinner will precede the Cedar Falls performance at 6:15 p.m. in Bethel Hall at Nazareth Lutheran. Tickets are $10 and may be obtained through the college's Visitors Center.

Following the Sunday matinee performance at the college, the Wartburg Choir will participate in the annual Christmas Carol Dinner, beginning at 4:30 p.m. in the Student Union. Small ensembles from the choir perform traditional Christmas carols during the meal. There is only one seating in Buhr Lounge and the Dining Hall. Tickets for this dinner are $9 and also may be obtained through the Visitors Center.

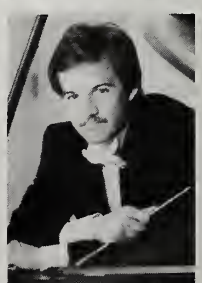
Christmas With Wartburg is presented by the Wartburg Choir, Band and Castle Singers under the combined direction of Dr. Robert E. Lee and Dr. Paul Torkelson of the music faculty.

Iowa Public Television will tape this year's Christmas With Wartburg and air it later in the holiday season.

Christmas With Wartburg tickets are free. Ticket information is listed on the back cover.

Torkelson earns doctorate

Dr. Paul Torkelson '76, assistant professor of music and director of choral activities at Wartburg, has completed his doctoral program at the University of Colorado in Boulder.



Torkelson, who has been on the Wartburg faculty since 1984, did a series of dissertation projects on the "Choral Music of Buxtehude, Purcell and Pevernage" for his Doctor of Musical Arts degree.

He holds a Master of Music degree from Kansas State University.

Three additional faculty members join college

Three apointments since the last Wartburg Magazine complete Wartburg's faculty for the 1989-90 academic year.

DR. TED REUTER has joined the Wartburg faculty as music department chair and associate professor of piano.

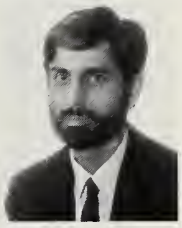
He previously taught at Tarleton State University in Texas and at St. Joseph's Conservatory of Music in St. Paul, Minn. He is an experienced accompanist and adjudicator for piano contests and auditions.

Reuter received his B.A. degree from Knox College, Galesburg, Ill., in 1973, a master of music degree from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign in 1977 and a D.M.A. degree from the University of Iowa in 1985.

DR. EDITH WALDSTEIN '73 is the new registrar, taking over the responsibilities formerly held by Dr. Ann Henninger, who now teaches full-time with the biology department. Waldstein is also associate professor of humanities. She had been teaching in the German department at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology since 1980. She also taught at the St. Louis Conservatory of Music and at Washington University in St. Louis, where she earned both her M.A. and Ph.D. degrees.

She has published a book on a female German author entitled Bettine von Arnim and the Politics of Romantic Conversation, and is writing a second on another author with the working title, Christa Wolf and Romanticism.

DR. MUSTAPHA PASHA is assistant professor of political science. He was a visiting assistant professor in the political science department at the University of Colorado last year. During 1987-88, he was a foreign expert with the Shaanxi Institute of Finance and Economics in the People's Republic of China, teaching international political economy, international relations and international economics at the graduate level.



He earned a Diploma in International Affairs at Punjab University in 1974 and a Bachelor of Laws degree from Punjab University Law College in 1975. His. M.A. and Ph.D. degrees are from the Graduate School of International Studies at the University of Denver.

New administrators assume responsibilities

A number of staff changes have been announced at Wartburg for the current academic year.

DR. KENT T. HAWLEY returns as interim vice president for student life and dean of students, a position he held from 1976 until 1985, when he became director of international programs. He will continue some of his responsibility in international programming but will also serve in the student life office until the college fills the position on a permanent basis.

The student life position was reinstituted after Dr. Edwin H. Welch resigned to become the president of the University of Charleston in West Virginia. As provost he had been responsible for both student life and academic affairs, but the college decided to return to an earlier structure and split the responsibilities among two positions. The appointment of Dr. C. Carlyle Haaland as interim vice president for academic affairs and dean of the faculty was announced in the previous issue of the Wartburg Magazine.

Other new appointments include Dan Gerdes '87, admissions counselor for South Central Iowa; Rochelle M. Rowan, minority student advisor and financial aid counselor; Will Smith, director of the career development center; Casey Cason '88, financial aid consultant and student employment coordinator; and Carl Bruihler, intern pastor in campus ministry.

GERDES had been teaching biology and coaching athletics at Audubon, Iowa, since graduation from Wartburg.

ROWAN had been a loan counselor supervisor with the Iowa Student Loan Liquidity Corporation and a student loan specialist with the United Savings Bank in Des Moines.

SMITH replaces David Baumgartner, who now has a similar position with Kent State University in Ohio. Smith recently completed his M.Ed. degree at Iowa State and previously taught for 10 years at Preston, Iowa, high school.

CASON succeeds Liz Wuertz, who has joined the Bartels Lutheran Home in Waverly as director of development. Since graduating, Cason had been a credit manager with Norwest Financial in Moline, Ill.

BRUIHLER will assume some of the international programming responsibilities left by Hawley in addition to assisting Campus Pastor Larry Trachte '66. Prior to beginning his theological training, he served in a youth ministry at Osage, Iowa, and taught public school in Rochester, Minn.

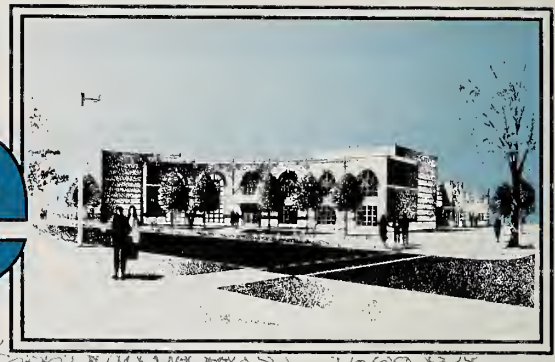
It's a fine time for fine arts



By Mary-Claire Uselding

Keyboard classes used to begin with the pianos pushed to the middle of the room because they wandered there anyway once the playing began. At least that's the story told about the years before 1956 when Wartburg's music department was in Old Main, whose gently sloping floors complicated life for pianists.

Those days are long gone. But the commitment that motivated Wartburg to enhance the quarters for both art and music by building Liemohn Hall in the mid-50's continues undiminished. Today, the college has announced its intention to build a new Fine Arts Center.

Number one

The project is a direct outcome of the college's long-range plan, A Decade of Opportunity. "Part of that vision for Wartburg," says President Robert Vogel, "is to provide a more stimulating intellectual environment for teaching and learning across the entire campus. Academic facilities are a key part of accomplishing that objective, and the new center is our first effort."

Thanks to a $100,000 grant from the John Deere Foundation, planning has been completed. The center will occupy 42,000 square feet and provide recital and rehearsal halls; instructional space for art, music and music therapy; student practice rooms; faculty studio/offices; an electronic music laboratory; a music library; and an art gallery.

A reception concourse will offer an inviting setting for those attending exhibitions and performances.

Wartburg's Board of Regents has set the Fine Arts Center as the college's number one capital priority. Once it is completed, the present music building will be renovated to provide facilities for the communication arts department. Funding of $500,000 for that renovation has been committed by the R.J. McElroy Trust of Waterloo, Iowa. The art building, built 20 years ago as a short-term solution to overcrowding, will be removed.

The Liemohn name, a tribute to longtime choir director Dr. Edwin Liemohn, will be preserved in the Liemohn Choral and Recital Hall. This hall is an extensive remodelling of the existing band room that will become part of the new, adjoining Fine Arts Center.

Keeping pace

Total cost of the Fine Arts Center is estimated at $4.5 million. A project of this magnitude has never before been undertaken at the college.

But it certainly isn't the first time Wartburg has kept pace with the needs of fine arts students, developments in the disciplines and the evolving quality of the programs.

Dr. C. Robert Larson, professor of music, who came to Wartburg in 1952, recalls how happy everyone was to move into Liemohn Hall. "I loved Old Main," he says, "but our practice rooms were in the basement. They were separated from each other—and the boiler room—by temporary partitions. There was no soundproofing whatsoever. The band practiced in the gym."

Dr. Maynard Anderson, professor of music education, arrived several years later and remembers thinking what a fine building Liemohn Hall was. "At first, I thought it was just totally functional. Then I came to realize that it had a certain spare elegance modelled on the German Bauhaus architectural tradition of the early 20th century."

In its day, Liemohn Hall not only solved the problem of the peripatetic pianos, it was one of the first collegiate buildings in Iowa designed specifically for the fine arts. According to Dr. Warren Schmidt, professor of organ and theory, it easily outclassed fine arts facilities at other Iowa colleges. It effectively served the college's enrollment of about 850 students. Adds Larson, "We were probably the only school in the state with a recording booth in the choir room. We were quite state-of-the-art in that respect."

By 1970, however, Liemohn couldn't contain Wartburg's expanding art and music programs, and a temporary art building was erected nereby to permit both disciplines to grow. Today, neither facility is adequate for a student enrollment that tops 1,450 and fine arts programs that have burgeoned over the past 30 years.

Great Things

Great things have happened for Wartburg music programs during the years in Liemohn Hall. The Wartburg Concert Band, under the direction of Dr. Robert E. Lee, professor of instrumental music, has become one of the most active college touring groups in the country. Waverly is unique among cities its size in its support of a college-community orchestra, under the direction of Janice Wade, assistant professor of music.

Christmas With Wartburg, an annual holiday production, has grown in reputation to the point where it will be performed this year in the Des Moines Civic Center. The Wartburg Choir, which achieved international acclaim under Liemohn and later under Dr. James Fritschel, performed a solo concert at Carnegie Hall in May, under current director Dr. Paul Torkelson, assistant professor of music.

Simply put, present facilities are inadequate to maintain and build upon the level of program quality that has been achieved and to serve the increasing number of students involved in music and art.

Dr. Franklin Williams, professor of music, who has just ended a 14-year tenure as music department chair, has been a witness to that forward momentum. "When I first came in 1965," he says, "I had to teach all the woodwinds myself, even though I performed only on the flute. Now, in addition to full-time faculty, we have several excellent part-time instrument specialists."

Williams says the music department is a dynamic group. "We have a solid and substantial core of people who've been here for a long time, plus a very strong group of young faculty."

He's especially proud of Wartburg's music therapy program. He learned about the profession when he was at the University of Oklahoma, which had an informal program in cooperation with a local mental hospital. When he looked at Wartburg's traditions and strengths—strong music, psychology, a mission of service—it seemed a natural. "We're one of only two programs in Iowa," Williams notes, "and, under the leadership of Carol Culton Heine (associate professor of music therapy), we've become one of the premier programs in the country."

Lee marvels at the growth of the instrumental program. "When I came here," he says, "we had only two instrumental music majors. Now there are 17." The growth of the community orchestra is also a point of pride. Years ago, the college was lucky to be able to put together a string quartet. Now it boasts a student Chamber Orchestra as well as the Wartburg Community Symphony Orchestra.

In fact, more than 70 students are majoring in music or music therapy, and Wartburg's 10 music organizations attract more than 250 participants yearly. Nearly 500 students are enrolled in music and art courses each year as part of the Wartburg Plan, a program of interdisciplinary education. So great is the involvement that 5 p.m. in Liemohn Hall bears a strong resemblance to a traffic jam, with choir members, Castle Singers, band members and private lesson students all converging in the tiny lobby.

Art, too

On a smaller scale, a parallel development has taken place in the art department. Arthur Frick, professor of art and department chair, came to Wartburg in 1976, shortly after art became a major. He thinks students then were more likely to study the visual arts, but that interest declined in the early '80's due to the recession, a return to greater concern for careers and the rumor that you couldn't make money in art ("untrue").

"Fortunately," he says, "we've seen a sustained swing back in the last three to four years. More people are majoring or minoring in art or are just plain interested in taking courses. And their interest seems more balanced."

With the resurgence, Frick often finds himself running to keep up. Small studios, only two in number, mean class size must be limited. Frick spends many a holiday "break" changing the studios for different courses, taking equipment and furniture out of the building, bringing new in, cleaning it and setting it up.

He eagerly anticipates the planned facility, which will have three multipurpose studios with adequate storage. He likes to think of additional course offerings in ceramics, jewelry, graphic arts, textiles or photography.

The art gallery is one of the most important features, he says, because of what it will do for the community and the college. "It will be big enough and secure enough to permit us to bring in professional exhibits. We'll also be able to have a permanent collection and can coordinate exhibits with the concert program. It can be a real focal point for the area."

Up-to-date

Music faculty members are no less enthusiastic about the center. Advantages cited by nearly everyone include better acoustics, better sound control, better humidity control and MORE SPACE—space for the Wartburg Community Symphony and the Chamber Orchestra to have their own practice room, space for proper instrument storage and space for faculty studios.

The present lack of adequately sized studios means many full-time faculty are cramped for space, and those important part-time faculty have no place at all. Dr. Ted Reuter, professor of music and new department chair, doesn't have to contend with ambulatory pianos but finds he can't use the customary chair's office with its access to secretarial support because the two pianos he needs to teach won't fit!

The new Fine Arts Center also will provide a well-equipped laboratory for electronic music. Williams and Schmidt both point out the importance of electronic music for training the ear and teaching composition. In the lab, a student will be able to compose, say, a string quartet, put it into a computer and hear what it's going to sound like without rounding up four string players. The computer can also produce each of the parts.

Says Williams, "Electronic music is the equivalent of a whole new family of instruments. They can make new sounds. We can't ignore that if we want to be a music school that's up-to-date."

Doing it right

How will Wartburg finance this ambitious project? Doug Mason, vice president for advancement, says the college will rely on major support from corporations and foundations and additional help from a select group of alumni and friends. "Many commemorative gift opportunities are available for donors who wish to make major gifts in support of the Fine Arts Center," Mason says. He

Wartburg College

President's Report

for Fiscal Year 1988-89

Waverly, Iowa

November 1989

For everything there is a season, and a time for every matter under heaven.
Ecclesiastes 3:1

The preacher in Ecclesiastes refers to times and seasons.

In our own day, decades have become important in marking the passage of time and measuring achievements and events.

The decade of the 1980s has been an exciting and significant one for Wartburg College. More important, its achievements have set the stage for even more exciting growth and development in the decade ahead. The focus of the 1990s will be on academics.

Before saying more about the '90s, I would like to take a comparative look at the 1980s.

The '80s were surely not as dramatic or threatening to the college as the 1930s, with the Great Depression and the moving of Wartburg Waverly to Clinton and then back again. Still, the college has faced some of the same challenges, particularly in the early years of the decade—a high inflation fueled by the oil crisis and an economic downturn especially devastating to agriculture and the Midwest. Wartburg's successes in the '80s are appreciated even more when we remember they were achieved during a time of economic hardship and a sharp decline in the number of high school students.

The '80s were not as historically important as the 1940s with World War II and its aftermath. For Wartburg, the single most important event of the century occurred in 1948—accreditation. The 1980s, though, have seen an expanding recognition of the academic quality built on that drive to accreditation.

Examples can be found in the Carnegie Foundation's inclusion of Wartburg in its top classification of liberal arts schools, one of only five such colleges in Iowa and 142 in the nation; Wartburg's consistent appearance in such guides as The New York Times Best Buys in College Education and Peterson's Competitive Colleges; and its 1988 ranking by Changing Times magazine as one of the 42 "best of the best" colleges in the United States offering high quality education at below average cost.

For all the growth at Wartburg in the '80s, it does not match the surge the college experienced in the 1950s. Wartburg historian Dr. Gerhard Ottersberg says of that period, "No matter how many students we planned for each year, more always showed up." The '50s saw the beginnings of substantial building programs to try to keep pace with the growth, an expansion that continued well into the '60s.

Still, growth in the '80s has been in critical areas—enrollment that grew from 1,080 in 1981 to 1,456 in 1989; an endowment that increased more than five-fold; and a campus that in the '70s and '80s has begun to take on special character with new and renovated facilities and landscaping.

The social milieu of the 1960s and '70s is in sharp contrast to the '80s. It has been a quieter time when compared to the struggles over Vietnam, civil rights and student rights. There are new issues today, however, that have demanded our attention—the threat of nuclear annihilation, environmental concerns and the continuing struggle all over the globe for freedom and dignity.

Perhaps the most serious crisis of the 1980s is in ethical leadership. A recent convocation speaker called it, "a crisis of integrity, of authenticity." Wartburg in the 1980s continues to be a place where students are helped to put it all together—their new learning, their faith, their understanding of themselves and others, their view of the world and the challenges that face our society.

Wartburg is a place where students are helped to discover and claim a calling, a sense about themselves, the gifts God has given them and the ways these gifts can be used in service to God and society.

All of this, from every decade, is prelude to the '90s. The college has regained its confidence in attracting and retaining good students and faculty. In the 1970s and '80s, the college has expanded its fiscal base and broadened its gift support. Of special note is the fact that one-third of all Wartburg alumni are now supporting the college on an annual basis.

I believe the exciting announcements in the 1990's will be about academic quality and academic achievement. You will hear about recognition of faculty, graduate study awards and fellowships for students and honors won by alumni.

Added resources and emphasis will be placed on faculty growth and development, creating a stimulating intellectual environment on campus and student opportunities for off-campus studies, research and internships.

We must maintain our competitive edge in enrollment, of course, and seek gifts for major projects and facilities. But the 1990's will be a time for growth at the heart—the educational experience the college offers students.

The challenge we face together is to claim our calling as a college of the church and to use the gifts God provides in the Name of our Lord Jesus Christ.

HERITAGE CLUB MEMBERSHIP ROLE

The Heritage Club of Wartburg College continues growing. Total membership now exceeds 655 individuals, comprising 417 family units. In addition to the members listed with this report, another group of members have chosen to remain anonymous. All members of Heritage Club are alumni and friends who have made provision for a future gift to Wartburg College.

Over the next few years, the Heritage Club is planning to double membership. That ambitious goal will require efforts by members and staff. We hope all alumni and friends will consider membership in this very special group.

Wartburg's endowment has grown to almost $9 million. Heritage Club has been a major factor in that growth. Currently, estates in probate will add another $1 million to that endowment total. Endowment growth is a positive indication of the value of Heritage Club. It is an important ingredient for the future of Wartburg College.

You can be part of this exciting group of people who take the future of Wartburg seriously. To qualify for membership in Heritage Club, simply inform the Planned Giving Office that you have made provision for a future gift to Wartburg. Such gifts take a variety of forms. Examples of gifts which bring people into Heritage Club include wills, trusts, insurance policies, gift annuities, life estates, establishing a restricted endowment or endowed scholarship.

For further details and membership application form, contact The Rev. David A. Nelson, Director of Planned Giving, Wartburg College, 222 9th St. N.W., Waverly, IA 50677-1003. You can also phone the planned giving office at 319/352-8490. Information on various types of planned gifts is available at no cost or obligation.

The 12th annual meeting of Heritage Club was held on May 19, 1989, with 114 members and friends in attendance.

adds that the college hopes to break ground next spring, subject to the success of fund-raising efforts.

Larson, for one, has no doubt the center will be completed, because "Wartburg is doing it right." Some schools, he says, have built fine arts centers that are really mausoleums, because bricks and mortar alone do not ensure first-class programs. "Wartburg has programs of great vitality and strength," he declares, and is now "pushing at the walls. It deserves a better facility to expand on the excellence of the past."

It's a fact that fine arts at Wartburg touch every student. The Wartburg Plan requires it; the clubs and performing organizations encourage it; and the popularity of elective art and music courses attest to it.

Frick says the fine arts offer a "sense of intellectual relief" and free students to move in opposite directions from other coursework, to shift directions in thinking and conceptualization. Lee isn't sure why, but he's observed that over the years some of this best band players have been science majors.

"That's just the way it should be," says Reuter. "One of the things that attracted me to Wartburg is the emphasis on the integrity of knowledge.

"I often think of the origins of liberal arts education in ancient Greece," he says, "where even the Spartan warriors were considered less adequate if they didn't have a firm grounding in the three most important aspects of life: the athletic or physical; the purely academic or intellectual; and the aesthetic or beautiful.

"There is a pattern to creation, and you see the pattern in music, art, science, athletics, everything. Wartburg emphasizes that whole theology. It puts me in mind of my favorite hymn, which begins:

This is my Father's world,
And to my list'ning ears
All nature sings, and round me rings
The music of the spheres.

"For me, that sums up why we do art and make music at Wartburg." ☐

WARTBURG reveals dirty laundry

They may seem like Saturday's heros to the fans in the stands, but to one person on the Wartburg campus they simply are another load of wash.

Joanne Peterson's name won't be found in any Sunday morning sports headlines, but she probably puts in more time on the college's athletic program than any quarterback, high-scoring center or hard-throwing pitcher. She is the laundry matron in the athletic department and deals with more dirty laundry than anyone else on campus.

"I do the washing for six athletic teams during the fall sports season alone," she said, not including women's tennis and golf, who do their own. In addition, there are junior varsity football and volleyball squads. All told, she washes the uniforms of 168 student athletes, amounting to 12 to 15 commerical machine loads per day.

Both Peterson and her equipment stand up pretty well despite the work load, but this year she was afforded the luxury of new equipment.

"We replaced an original dryer that had been in use since Knights Gym was built in 1950," Athletic Director John Kurtt said, "and we purchased a washer to replace one that was 30 years old. Now the washers are all automatic so Joanne doesn't have to be there during the wash cycles."

"Each machine holds a 50-pound load," Peterson said. "For the football team alone, I usually do six to seven loads a day and 11 to 12 loads if it's after a game day."

The football team obviously generates the most laundry, and the days before and after games get to be pretty hectic in the laundry room.

"I usually come in on Friday nights if they are away on Saturday to do the laundry after Friday's practices," she said. "When they are home, I come in at 5:30 a.m. I make sure the laundry is all done, and then I take the uniforms out of the closet where they are stored. The players pick up them on their way to get taped."

Sunday is usually Peterson's busiest day. Not only do all the football uniforms have to be cleaned and prepared for Monday's junior varsity game, but she also must do the uniforms from the other teams that competed over the weekend.

The athletic teams also have practice uniforms that must be cleaned on a regular basis.

"I don't do a huge load of practice uniforms every day of the week," she said, "because the players turn them in on their own. However, sometimes it gets to the point where I don't know how they can stand to dress in them anymore. Then I get a basket and make them give me their laundry."

There are no special secrets for getting uniforms clean, even if it was a muddy Saturday.

"All it takes is a lot of elbow grease," she said. "Nothing else can get out ground-in grass stains."

A potential disaster was corrected by that same type of elbow grease when a baseball player left a red batting glove in his pants pocket, and it got washed with a number of other white baseball pants.

"They came out a beautiful pink," said Kurtt, who also is the baseball coach. "She just kept washing them over and over until they were white again."

Football coach Don Canfield is appreciative of the way Peterson keeps his squads looking spiffy when they take the field on Saturday.

"She's a beautiful person who is extremely conscientious about her work. She goes overtime to keep our 80-plus uniforms clean, orderly and folded, especially during periods of wet weather when we can get pretty muddy and there is only a short turnaround time between varsity and junior varsity games."

Anyone who has visited a locker room knows how odoriferous sweaty bodies and uniforms can get, but it doesn't bother Peterson.

"I guess after 10 years you just get used to it," she laughs.

And you thought intercollegiate athletics was all glamour. □

Longtime music teacher retires

Dr. Jean Abramson, who taught piano at Wartburg for 35 years, has retired from the music faculty.

In addition to teaching and performing on the piano and harpsichord, she was a noted lecture-recitalist with special interest in Finnish heritage and culture.

Prior to coming to Wartburg, she taught at Suomi College in Hancock, Mich., and Mary Hardin-Baylor College in Belton, Tex.

She earned her B.M. degree in piano from Chicago Musical College and her M.M. and A.M.D. degrees from the Eastman School of Music at the University of Rochester in New York.

She also studied at the University of Michigan and twice attended piano master courses in Vienna, Austria.

Fintel retires from Roanoke

Dr. Norman '51 and Jo Fintel break ground for the new Fintel Library going up on the Roanoke College campus in Salem, Va. Fintel retired in June after serving 14 years as Roanoke's eighth president. Both Fintels received honorary degrees from Roanoke at last spring's commencement. Under his administration, Roanoke, the second oldest Lutheran college in the nation, grew from 1,200 to 1,500 students and saw its endowment multiply six times to $24 million. Fintel served as Wartburg's director of public relations from July 1950 to August 1960. He then became director of the Division for College and University Services of the former American Lutheran Church before assuming the presidency at Roanoke.

Alumni Directory now available

The new Wartburg Alumni Directory is off the press, according to Jan Striepe, director of alumni relations. Advance orders for the book have already been filled, Striepe said, adding that her office will have a limited number of additional copies available at $25 each. The directory contains names, addresses, and careers of Wartburg alumni through the Class of 1988.

Striepe said she was pleased with response to the questionnaire that preceded publication of the book. More than 55 percent of the college's 12,500 alumni returned updated information.

Orders should be sent to the Wartburg College Alumni Office, 222 9th St. N.W., Waverly, Iowa 50677-1003. Enclose a return address and $25 for each directory ordered.

New Mrs. Iowa is alumna

The reigning Mrs. Iowa is a Wartburg alumna. Leah Lindeman VanderHolt of Parkersburg, Iowa, will compete in December for the Mrs. America title after winning her state crown in April.

VanderHolt, 27, attended Wartburg during the 1980-81 and 1981-82 academic years. She earned her bachelor's degree from the University of Northern Iowa in 1984 and now teaches kindergarten in Parkersburg. She and her husband, Gregg, have two children, Amy, 4, and Rachel, 1.

She says she is using her reign as Mrs. Iowa to promote education and the importance of a solid family unit. She appeared in numerous parades, fairs and festivals throughout the state during the summer months and is now preparing for the national contest, which will be held in either Las Vegas or Hawaii and will be aired on television.

Leah Lindeman VanderHolt '84, the reigning Mrs. Iowa, visits the Wartburg campus with her daughter, Amy.

Alumni positive about Wartburg according to recent survey

Results of a recent survey indicate that Wartburg alumni are positive about their alma mater; they are willing to assist in college efforts; and their salaries have gotten steadily better over the years.

Those responses were gathered from a recent alumni questionnaire that preceded publication of a new Wartburg Alumni Directory. More than 55 percent of the college's 12,500 alumni returned updated information for the directory, and many of them also responded to optional questions about general attitude toward the college, family income and willingness to assist in college admissions and development efforts.

"Alumni are very positive about their alma mater," said Jan Striepe, director of alumni relations, "Eighty-five percent of the 5,351 persons responding to a question about their general attitude toward Wartburg described themselves as 'strongly positive' (35 percent) or 'positive' (53 percent).

"This indicates that alumni had good experiences at Wartburg and have continued to think well of the college."

The survey showed that of 4,435 respondents to the annual income question, 28 percent reported incomes of $50,000 or more. Forty-eight percent said they earned between $25,000 and $50,000, while 24 percent reported incomes less than $25,000.

At the top end of the salary scale, 168 respondents reported six-figure incomes, with 26 earning more than $200,000 and 142 earning between $100,000 and $200,000.

Most respondents indicated they were willing to assist the college in one or more areas. More than 1,200 alumni said they would refer names of prospective students to the college. Other popular responses were "contribute to the Annual Fund (970)," "distribute Wartburg information to area churches (609)," "contact prospective students and their parents (579)," "make calls to alumni to promote a local alumni event (504)."
